BODY FOUND

'Shorty' Sexton Committed Suicide By Jumping Into Island Creek.

MISSING FOR ONE MONTH

John Higgs, a Logger, Found the Body at the Foot of Elizabeth Street This Morning.

THE INQUEST HELD THIS AFTERNOON

The mystery of Charles Sexton's mysterious disappearance on Saturday night, February 2, was solved today, when his badly decomposed remains were found at the foot of Elizabeth street, just at the mouth of Island creek, about 9 o'clock this morning by John Higgs, an employee at the Ferguson-Palmer mill.

The body was floating among the logs and Higgs was assisted in getting it out by Herman Isom and Geo. Hall, who were at work with him.

The remains were easily recognized as those of Sexton by the clothing watch chain, size, and general appearance. They evidently floated out of Island creek.

It seems that Sexton jumped into the creek, either from the bank near the foot of Third street, or from Island creek bridge.

Mrs. French Shoemaker remembers seeing him on the car on the night he disappeared. He got off at Nunn's grocery, at Third and Broad, and went directly to the creek. He doubtless was then bent on self destruction.

Coroner Phelps held an inquest at 1 o'clock this afternoon at Nance's undertaking establishment, the verdict being that he committed suicide by drowning. The remains were embalmed and will be kept until tomorrow. His brother in Amory, Miss., has been telegraphed, but not heard from. The funeral will probably take place tomorrow afternoon. Burial at Oak Grove.

Mr. Sexton disappeared February 2, four weeks ago Saturday. He had for some little time previous to that been suffering from mental aberration, and finally so frequently threatened to do violence to himself, he was incarcerated in the county jail.

At one time he attempted to throw himself from the second story window of a Broadway saloon, and was restrained only with great difficulty. After remaining in jail a few days, he lay in a stupor for hours at a time, but finally seemed to completely recover his faculties, and was permitted to walk about.

His brother, Mr. Robert Sexton, of Amory, Miss., who had been here to look after him decided to take him home, and one Saturday night the patient disappeared, and the most exhaustive search failed to reveal any trace of his whereabouts.

His brother returned home, and there were various conjectures as to the missing man's actions. It was thought by some that he had carried out his threats to kill himself, while others believed he had been spirited away by designing persons for some unknown purpose.

He was "located" in half a dozen different cities, but in each instance the man proved to be other than "Shorty" Sexton, and his friends and relatives, after sending and receiving scores of telegrams and letters, gave up the search.

The dead man was about 42 years old, and came to Paducah from Henderson eight years ago. He was bartender most of the time for Mr. L. A. Lagomarsino, but for awhile was proprietor of the "Log Cabin saloon," on Broadway, near Second. He was familiarly known as "Shorty" Sexton. Previous to his residence in Henderson, he was in the shoe business at Mt. Vernon, Ill. He was in a cyclone

THE CROWDS ARE THINNING OUT

Washington, March 5.—The president continues his present efficient cabinet in office with him. He sent the nominations to the senate today and they will, of course, be confirmed. This is in keeping with the president's announced intention immediately after the election. He claimed that the endorsement of him at the polls last November carried with it the endorsement of the entire administration, all the way through. It is thought that he will carry out this policy in nearly all of the appointments. Griggs remains in the cabinet. It is only, however, until a successor has been selected.

CROWD THINNING OUT.

The crowd of visitors has decreased at a great rate, and there are also very few office seekers remaining. Generally the town is full for weeks after the inauguration, of claimants for recognition in the shape of some nice official berth. There are a number of Kentuckians in the remaining few.

DIVORCE SUITS.

Two mismatched couples long for a severance of marriage ties. Annie Fears today filed suit in the circuit court against Jas. R. Fears for divorce and maintenance. She alleges they were married June 13, 1900, and that he treated her cruelly and abandoned her. She claims he has $200 in the bank and makes good wages and asks for proper maintenance.

INHUMAN FATHER.

HE ASSAULTS HIS WIFE AND DAUGHTER BADLY INJURING BOTH.

Will Bradshaw, colored, who lives on South Tenth street, was warrant ed this morning for a cowardly assault he made on his wife and daughter, Lennie Bradshaw.

The daughter, with badly swollen face and blackened eyes, appeared at the city hall today and secured the warrant.

She claims that last night her father got up about 1:30 and first assaulted her mother, knocking her into insensibility and then so badly injuring her arm that she cannot use it today. He then used a chair on his daughter. He has frequently threatened to kill them both, she declares. If arrested Bradshaw will be tried before Judge Sanders tomorrow.

Chicago, Ill., March 5.—Carter H. Harrison, for the third time, will lead the Democratic hosts in the mayoralty race this spring. He was nominated today amid great hurrahs and is almost certain of election, as the city is greatly displeased at the nomination of Judge Hancock to lead the Republicans. Hancock is the tool of Lorimer, a local boss, much disliked for his methods.

LIGHT SENTENCE.

ILLINOIS MURDERER GETS 21 YEARS IN THE PEN.

Pekin, Ill., March 5.—Samuel Moser, convicted of murdering his wife and three children was today sentenced to 21 years in the penitentiary. The verdict is considered as a very light one.

The forecast for tomorrow is for fair and colder weather.

A horse belonging to the Rhodes-Burford company ran away on North Eighth street this morning and frightened Dr. Frank Boyd's horse, which was standing in front of the Eighth street infirmary. It turned the doctor's buggy over but did no damage of consequence. The other buggy was uninjured.

Dr. Lillard Sanders performed two successful operations at the city hospital yesterday afternoon. The bone in the right limb of Miss Lulu Warnack was scraped, and an abscess in Charles Bartlett's hand was opened. The latter was formerly with Buckskin Bill.

The public is cordially invited to the organ recital this Tuesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. No charge whatever.

Captain Hardiman Robinson, of Fulton, continues to improve slowly at the Illinois Central hospital.

DANGERS OF OPERA GLASSES. "Cheap opera glasses are an abomination," said an eye specialist. "There is no doubt about this. I have made a special study of the matter. Lots of eyes are nearly ruined by them. I find this particularly true of young girls who go to a great deal to the theater, and who seem to think they must have opera glasses. To their way of thinking an opera glass is an opera glass, and that's all there is to it. So they buy cheap ones, and then wonder why their eyes are giving them so much trouble, and why they have such headaches. Unless the very best lenses are used, I should advise everybody to taboo opera glasses. The further from the stage one is the better and more perfect the glasses should be. Exactly the reverse of this is actually the case, or the people who sit in the rear seats or in the balcony are usually the ones who have the poorest glasses. A performance viewed with the naked eye is much more satisfactory, to my way of thinking. An opera glass gives but a limited view, and only the one object on which it is focused is visible. I don't see why people use even the best of them."—Philadelphia Record.

A NOVELTY.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL WILL TEACH FARMERS HOW TO BUILD GOOD ROADS.

About the middle of this month the Illinois Central will "send out a special train, consisting of eight or nine cars, from New Orleans to Chicago. It will contain machinery for the building of modern wagon roads. It will make stops along the line and the crew will show the farmers how to build good roads. Advance agents will go ahead of the train and work up mass meetings at specified points, interesting farmers in the coming of the train. The National Good Roads association will co-operate with the Illinois Central. This is the first time anything of this kind has been attempted in America.

RELIGIOUS FERVOR AT FULTON.

Fulton, Ky., March 5.—There is considerable activity in religious circles here. Rev. J. H. Wright, who resigned as pastor of the First Baptist church last Sunday, has been called to the pastorate of the Union City church. At the First Methodist church the pastor, Rev. J. G. Clarke, has begun a revival, assisted by Rev. J. W. Lowrance, an eminent preacher of the Memphis conference. Today at the Baptist church an hour was devoted to special prayer for the state and nation, this being inauguration day. The new $4,000 Cumberland Presbyterian church has been completed and will be dedicated soon. The Baptists will build a new modern edifice here this summer.

A DOUBLE TRACK.

It is reported that Vice President J. T. Harahan, of the Illinois Central, announced while in New Orleans a few days since that during the coming spring the Illinois Central would double track its line between Jackson, Miss., and Crystal Springs, and it was probable the entire line from New Orleans to Jackson would be similarly treated. The business of the road has grown to enormous proportions on account of the increased production of fruits and vegetables and the output of lumber from the Gulf.

A DAILY THOUGHT.

Who lives to nature rarely can be poor,
Who lives to fancy never can be rich.
—Thomson.

FOUR EVENTFUL YEARS.

Yesterday saw the close of a remarkable congress and a more remarkable administration—one that will go down in history as the most remarkable since the time of Lincoln. This country has been making history at a breakneck speed—true Yankee fashion—in the four years just closed. We have seen questions, weighted with problems serious and of much import, come up for settlement; in that time the United States have advanced to the front ranks of world powers—and from present indications will henceforth exercise great influence in all international problems; we have seen destruction and reconstruction; we have seen a war with a foreign nation, the first since 1812-15; new territory has been added to our domain; a military system calculated to meet the demands of this enlarged domain has been provided and an entirely new career has been marked out for the country. It is a wonderful record that will be appreciated more by the coming generations than by the present. The next four years are equally important. Mr. McKinley has been a leading factor in the history just made. He has settled the question arising from the satisfaction of a big majority of the people, and The Sun has every confidence of his doing the same with the unsettled problems of the present and the ones the future hold in store for us.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

President McKinley's inaugural address was a modest statement of the glorious events of his first administration with a very clear and concise outline of his policy for the future as to the two great questions which now confront the nation as a legacy of the late war—the Cuban and Philippine questions. Although the war has been closed barely three years yet the government has been enabled to make a very large reduction in the war tax. The country is enjoying the greatest of prosperity and the will of the people as evidenced by the election of 1896 has been very largely executed. "But fortunate as our condition is," says the president, "its permanence can only be assured by sound business methods and strict economy in national administration and legislation. We should not permit our great prosperity to lead us to reckless ventures in business or profligacy in public expenditures."

While the president did all that could be done honorably to avert the Spanish-American war, it becomes inevitable. But it "imposed on us obligations from which we cannot escape and from which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape."

The president rejoices that sectional lines have been wiped out; that "sectionalism has disappeared," and that "division on public questions can no longer be traced to the war maps of 1861."

The address shows unbounded faith in the "capacity, integrity and high purposes of the American people." "Our institutions will not deteriorate by extension and our sense of justice will not abate under tropic suns in distant seas."

"The American people, intrenched in freedom at home, take their love for it with them wherever they go and they reject as mistaken and unworthy the doctrine that we lose our own liberties by securing the enduring foundations of liberty to others."

As to the Cuban question the president's utterance should satisfy the most bitter partisans of Cuban freedom. He says:

"The peace which we are pledged to leave to the Cuban people must carry with it the guarantee of permanence. We became sponsors for the pacification of the island, and we remain accountable to the Cubans, no less than to our own country and people, for the reconstruction of Cuba as a free commonwealth, on abiding foundations of right, justice, liberty and assured order. Our enfranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall be a reality."

ality, not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment, bearing within itself the elements of failure."

As to the future of the Philippines, the president's statements, are equally as clear and forcible. "We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States. I shall continue the efforts already begun, until order shall be restored throughout the islands, and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited, and when established will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago prevailed, to afford the inhabitants of the islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it, will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity."

Before such a policy the ghost of imperialism will vanish into thin air. No state in the whole south has been more benefited by the influx of capital than has Alabama, and yet some of her Populist citizens are gunning for the trusts, as they call anti-capital legislation. It seems strange that with all the evidence about us of the great benefits of capital in developing the vast resources of our Southland that any one should want to inaugurate a war against the very agencies that are bringing the south to the front rank in commercial importance. The Birmingham News commenting on this proposed hostile legislation says: "In the end these laws have served to needlessly annoy and impede capital and have proved a positive detriment to the development of resources of those states which have enacted them." The time has come in the south when business people should direct the affairs of state and not pessimistic theorists. Kentucky has greatly suffered by reason of the ill advised legislation that has been put on her law books in order to satisfy the Populist element, when that element was in control.

The cigarette must go. Not only are the various state legislatures in many instances passing stringent measures against the pernicious article, but even the girls are taking up the fight. In Pittsburgh the young ladies have formed an anti-cigarette league and have issued the edict that "the boys must give up the cigarettes or give up the girls." Should ever the Kentucky girls lay down such an ultimatum there would be no need of state legislation here to see the passing of the cigarette.

The proposed organization of another pants factory by home capital is a move in the right direction. There are many opportunities for profitable investment of capital in the establishment of factories by our own citizens which will not only be most excellent investments in themselves, but will also be of great benefit to Paducah. Paducah is essentially manufacturing city, and money judiciously invested in manufacturing enterprises will benefit both the city and the investor.

Colonel Tom Campbell must have smiled a broad smile when he read the alleged reasons which Kentucky's embryonic statesman, who signs pardons for criminals and otherwise lives up to his ideal of what a governor should be and should do, gave for his action in pardoning the gambler Alvey.

Every citizen of Kentucky ought to read the remarks of Judge Barker, of Louisville, to the grand jury when he discusses the action of Governor Beckham in pardoning Alvey, the convicted gambler. The deep disgrace which the action of the governor has brought on the state is largely counteracted by the noble and fearless words of Judge Barker.

The Sun yesterday contained all the news from Washington which is more than The News can say.

THE SUN'S DAILY STORY.

A DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT.

By C. K. ALDEN.

Copyright, 1901, by the Daily Story Pub. Co.

It was not singular, perhaps, with the present mode of dress, fashionable gait and pompadour hair-dressing, and the fact that there was nothing peculiar about my appearance, that I should closely resemble another young man; so closely that I was mistaken in the dusk for a Miss Arnold. It roused me from my condition of apathy and gave just the impetus I needed.

The fact was that though I was scarcely in the twenties, I was disgusted with life, or was it my commonplace surroundings? Having once made up my mind that in a new atmosphere I should breathe easier, I had hoarded until I had the means of escape and was on the threshold of my new life; I was taking my first walk in a strange city.

"Miss Arnold-Shirley," a young man with fair hair, blue eyes behind glasses, a decidedly redish mustache and even, white teeth had grasped my arm before I could prevent him. We still held it.

"I am—" Before I could flash my sentence, as I intended—"not Miss Arnold," he exclaimed: "Of course you are surprised to see me and all that; I may have seemed indifferent, but I have been in the streets, the registers, the society columns of the Sunday newspapers. I am lucky for once!"

"But I fear—" "Fear nothing. We are together again! For the interim I care nothing. This is a dream, a nightmare. I was just in the mood to humor him. I was fond of adventure, but thus far life had been tame. There was a spirit of mischief in me despite my despondency. I would listen awhile and when I had to retreat I knew he would charge it up to a young girl's caprice, rather than to boldness."

"As usual," he said, "you let me do all the talking."

"You are equal to it," I replied, wondering why my voice did not betray me.

"You studied elocution after all," was his next comment. "Your voice is deeper, richer; it was always sweet."

"Thank you," I said, bowing low in acknowledgment.

"Miss Arnold-Shirley," he knew you by your real name, but I will never forget that. What a fool I've been!"

"Rather say what a fool he was to confuse us. He must accept the consequences. To tell the truth I do not feel largely flattered to have so shadowy a personality that your impudence should prove successful. To be sure he is near-sighted. But where there is strong attraction, something besides the senses should surely come in play. He must be dense."

I fully determined to confess that evening. Before I could begin my confession, however, Mr. Irving started in on one of his own; he told his love for me.

"Don't, don't!" I cried; "you don't know who you are talking to. I'm an impostor, a deceiver, a deceitful wretch! My name is not Arnold; I never set eyes on you until that night we met in Main street, and I've acted like a fool since."

In place of the look of horror I expected to see, a smile rippled, then a hearty laugh came. He evidently thought I was trying to amuse him.

"It is true," said I, walking away from him. "Every word is true. The real Miss Arnold, the girl you love, lives on Beaumont avenue. I talked with her this very afternoon."

"I like the artificial one best," he said. "The only fault I have to find with you is that you think me stupid. I do not know as I shall ever forgive that. Did you honestly think I believed you were Miss Arnold after the very first minute of our acquaintance? You interested me when I saw my mistake, and in the absence of the real Miss Arnold, I cultivated the sham one. 'Twas a dangerous experiment, but ends happily for both of us, if you are not obstinate. Must I protest that I love you for yourself alone? If you have no local habitation and a name, all the better; you can take mine."

I did, and have never regretted it, except when I am unmercifully teased about my success in the role of Miss Arnold. Miss Arnold, the real, by the way, acted as bridesmaid; everyone thought we were twin sisters.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars to any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"CROWN" SALARIES.

THEY VARY, BUT GENERALLY ARE QUITE "HEALTHY."

The president of the Swiss republic, who holds office for only one year, gets the smallest salary of any ruler in Europe. His compensation is $3,000 per annum.

The president of the French republic gets $250,000 a year, just five times what our president receives, and holds his office for seven years. Besides, he has country houses, steam yachts, private cars, game preserves, and other luxuries maintained for him at the expense of the state.

Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, gets about $2,000,000 a year from the Austrian exchequer, and as much from Hungary, but he has to maintain a lot of court theaters and operas, and if it were not for the private fortune of the house of Hapsburg, which is large, would have trouble to make both ends meet.

King Victor Emmanuel gets $3,000,000 a year, a great share of which is spent in keeping up the palaces of the various little royalties that have been absorbed by the kingdom of Italy.

Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, gets as king of Prussia, $3,000,000 a year, but the private fortunes of the Hohenzollern family, which belong to him, are large.

The young King Alfonso, of Spain, has an allowance of $1,500,000 a year. His mother, the queen regent, has a jointure of $50,000 a year and a large fortune inherited from her uncle, while the princess of the Asturias, who married last week, has an allowance from the state of $100,000 a year, and her sister one of $50,000.

The czar has $4,000,000 a year from the national revenues, and an immense private fortune.

King Leopold, of Belgium, has $700,000 a year, besides his profits from the Congo deal.

The king of Portugal is rather poor, having only $300,000 a year, but his queen has $100,000 a year from her private fortune.

The young queen of Holland draws $100,000 a year from the national exchequer, but has one of the largest private fortunes in Europe.

King George, of Greece, gets $240,000 a year, toward which Great Britain, France and Russia have each contributed $20,000 annually since 1863.

The kings of Denmark and of Sweden and Norway each gets $500,000 a year.

VALUABLE TROPHY.

FRAGMENTS OF THE FIRST CHAPTER OF ST. MATTHEW FOUND.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 28.—The Rev. Dr. William C. Winslow, of this city, vice president of the Egypt exploration fund, today announced the discovery of a most valuable trophy among the large number of papyrus recently received by Dr. Winslow for distribution among several universities, twenty-nine of which went to the University of Pennsylvania. It is the oldest fragment of the gospels of the world now in this country. Dr. Winslow states that the papyrus contains a large part of the first chapter of the Gospel of St. Matthew. It was found at Oxyrhynchus, 140 miles south of Cairo, near the famous "Logia" or "Sayings of Jesus," and its date is placed by some experts at 180 A.D., and by the editors of the society's publication at fifty or sixty years later.

This papyrus of St. Matthew belongs to the same class as the famous Sinaitic and Vatican Codices, and, of course, is a remarkable corroboration of these texts and the present accepted version. On an important doctrinal point it declares in common the exact language, "Joseph, then son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary for wife, for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost." This papyrus is the oldest fragment of the Gospels, or, indeed, of the New Testament.

Dr. Winslow states that valuable papyri of Homer, Thucydides and Euclid are also in the collection. The papyrus of Thucydides includes no less than chapters 36-41 of his fourth book, eight dates from the first century.

Very fortunate, too, says Dr. Winslow, is the University of Pennsylvania to possess a splendid papyrus of a large part of the fifth book of the Iliad in very good text. It dates back a little later than 300 A. D. The authentication is full and somewhat unique.

The petition of Dionysia to the Prefect, dated 180 A. D., is a legal document of many pages, full of just references to precedents introduced as one finds in a petition and argument to our supreme court of 1901. Dionysia claims her right to property conferred by her marriage contract, and to enjoy the income of it, without the interference of Chaeremon, her father. A bit of Euclid of the third century illustrates proposition 5 of the second book, and papyrus 990 reveals the fact that private syndicates existed as 83 A. D., for it states how a company of residents got together to do some banking at the village of Tuxis. The banking of the Nile, not of funds, is meant, in order to keep their lands from being too much watered.

He Was the Carpenter.

The great sculptor Chantrey commenced his career as a journeyman carpenter, in connection with which fact there is an old story told. One day while inspecting a costly vase in the house of the wealthy poet Rogers he asked, with a smile, who made the table on which the curio stood. "Curiously enough," said Rogers, "it was not made by a cabinet maker, but by a common carpenter." Chantrey asked: "Did you see it made?" and Rogers, supposing the query to be one of incredulity, replied positively: "Certainly, I was in the room while the man finished it with the chisel, and I gave him instructions in placing it." Chantrey laughed and said: "You did, I remember that and all the circumstances perfectly well." "You?" exclaimed the poet. "Yes," said Chantrey quietly. "I was the carpenter."—Kansas City Independent.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I regret very much that I did not get to make the parade as advertised, but the Paducah colored band that I had paid one half of the amount required in advance, disappointed me, hence I will have to disappoint the public, but my show will go as advertised at the colored Odd Fellows' hall, Seventh and Adams streets.

A BIG DROP.

FALL OF 45 DEGREES SINCE YESTERDAY MORNING.

A regular cold wave struck this city late yesterday afternoon. The highest temperature reached yesterday was 64 degrees, and the lowest last night was 19 degrees, a fall of 45 degrees in a few hours. A light snow filtered down early this morning, but amounted to nothing.

AT THE Y. M. C. A. LAST NIGHT.

About fifty-five of the boys who are members of the association met at the building last night and at 6:30 marched to the gymnasium, where a very nice supper had been prepared by the ladies of the Christian Endeavor society, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. After partaking freely of the good things such as oyster stew, ham, bread and butter, salad, pickle, coffee and fruit of several kinds, the program consisting of music, recitation, short papers and speeches was carried out. John Miller, Jr., responded to a toast, "Our Conduct." Geo. Rock read a paper he had prepared; Norvin Allen gave a recitation, "The Kentucky Watermelon," and was encored, and recited the "Ragley Man." Henry Cave and Vaughan Dabney gave a selection on the mandolins. A paper written by Cyril Miller was read. Robert Wallace responded to a toast, thanking the ladies and friends for the banquet they had prepared. General Secretary W. G. Escott and Mr. Geo. B. Lyne made short talks. Warren Sights played on the violin after which all the boys sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and went home.
